

Simon Bavec, MSc, PhD student

Graduated as MSc in agriculture and food technology at ESA Angers and currently a PhD student of agricultural economics at University of Maribor. He analyses short food supply chains and their effect on producers and small famers. He is dealing with traditional food products and products with higher quality and also attends conferences with scientific contributions. He is participating in projects for rural development.