

Klemen Bizjak, MSc

B.S. in forestry at the University of Ljubljana. Continued postgraduate study at Wageningen University (MSc Environmental Sciences), the Netherlands. Co-founder of Institute of sustainable development and holistic solutions. He is elected representative of NGO sector for eco-innovation and participated in development of Slovenia's Development Strategy 2014-2020. He has been involved in international projects abroad and in Slovenia, with focus on sustainable development, technology transfer, forestry and social entrepreneurship. He is a member of the committee of agriculture at Maribor municipality. Currently he is employed at Slovenian chamber of agriculture and forestry.