

Darja Piciga, PhD

Finished PhD in Cognitive Developmental and Educational Psychology at the University in Ljubljana, Slovenia, she has been working since 1980 as an expert on developing knowledge-based society and an analyst, policy maker and manager in the state administration. She is author or co-author of more than 100 scientific and professional publications in various areas: Cognitive Development, Learning and Teaching, Mathematics and Science Education, Information Literacy, Primary Education, Secondary Education, Higher Education, Comparative and Evaluation Studies in Education, Research and Development Policy, Climate Change and Sustainable Development. In the nineties, she was one of the leading Slovenian experts on education and cognitive development, working at the Educational Research Institute in Ljubljana, and also in the forefront of a movement for education based on human values. In the period 2001 – 2010, she was the Head of the programme of 10 Research Centres of Excellence and the Head of the Office for coordination of development policies and structural funds at the Ministry of Higher Education, Science and Technology, and afterwards moved for 2 years to the Government Office of Climate Change. In addition to her present work as a senior expert at the Ministry of the Environment and the Spatial Planning of the Republic of Slovenia, she pursues an international career as an independent expert for integral policy planning in sustainable development, as presented on her website www.dpiciga.com. In 2014 she was granted the general Horus award (the Slovenian Award for Social Responsibility).